The Exchange does not own, operate or manage the ST Blockchain. The ST Blockchain is managed and operated by the DBS Group.

12.3.2 Risks arising from no governance rights in respect of a Member holding Security Tokens: Save as set out in the applicable token terms and conditions, the Security Tokens confer no governance rights of any kind on a Member holding such Security Tokens with respect to the relevant Issuers or their related corporations. Accordingly, all decisions involving the relevant Issuers and their related corporations will be made by the relevant Issuers and their related corporations at their discretion, including decisions to create and sell more tokens, or to sell or liquidate the Issuers and their related corporations. These decisions could adversely affect the value of the Security Tokens.

12.3.3 Regulatory risks: It is possible that certain jurisdictions will apply existing regulations on, or introduce new regulations addressing, blockchain technology, which may be contrary to the Security Tokens and/or Digital Payment Tokens and which may, inter alia, result in substantial modifications of the sale and/or use of the Security Tokens and/or Digital Payment Tokens, including termination and the loss of the Security Tokens and/or Digital Payment Tokens.

12.3.4 Risk associated with token storage mechanisms: The Exchange does not own, operate or manage any token storage mechanisms and these are separately provided by the Approved Custodian.

12.3.5 Risk of hacking and security weaknesses: The Security Tokens and/or Digital Payment Tokens may be targeted by hackers or malicious groups or organisations who may attempt to interfere with the Security Tokens and/or Digital Payment Tokens and/or the sale/purchase of the Security Tokens and/or Digital Payment Tokens (as the case may be) or steal the Security Tokens and/or Digital Payment Tokens in various ways, including malware attacks, distributed denial of service, consensus-based attacks, Sybil attacks, phishing, smurfing and hacking.

12.3.6 Risks associated with taxation: The tax treatment of an investment in Digital Payment Tokens and/or Security Tokens is uncertain and varies as between jurisdictions. They may be considered assets in certain jurisdictions and currency in others. Direct and indirect taxes such as income or capital gains, stamp duty, sales, goods and services, or value-added taxes may be imposed on transactions in Digital Payment Tokens and/or Security Tokens. Additionally, foreign tax authorities or other regulators may require banks, custodians or exchanges to report details on an investor's holdings and, in some cases, require banks, custodians or exchanges to withhold taxes on investments on behalf of investors, to be paid to foreign tax authorities. Investors are recommended to seek specific tax advice to understand the tax treatment of their investments in Digital Payment Tokens and/or Security Tokens.

12.3.7 Counterparty Risks: All settlement of trades occurs outside the Exchange and the Exchange is not responsible for the settlement of trades of the Security Tokens and/or Digital Payment Tokens on the Trading System. Whilst the Exchange operates on a cash and Security Tokens and/or Digital Payment Tokens upfront basis and has powers under the Exchange Rules to facilitate settlement, there may be situations where a trade is not settled. In such an event, a Member may have to seek legal remedies against the counterparty Member.
